Many Changes Among Teaching Staff

Grayling schools will open Tuesday morning, September 7th, and a large enrollment is anticipated. Also there is good indication of a large enrollment of foreign students. Grayling schools have been kept up to a high standard with the result that many outside pupils are attracted to this city.

Trap Shooters

A number of thrilling and interesting events took place at the trap Sunday morning, where rivalry is becoming keen. C. P. Mickelson again led in the scoring with T. E. Douglas avowing that he was going to bump him out of first place, but lost out by one for a tie.

Junior Hanson surprised the old timers by killing 18 birds out of 25 much to the surprise of his first attempt at the opening shoot when he failed to connect with a single one. He is getting his eye on the target in great shape and bids favorable to out-rival the old timers after a little more practice.

SHRINERS COMING FRIDAY NOON

TO STAGE PARADE ON MAIN ST.

Band, Chanters and Patrol, 11:30 A. M.

Grayling is to have a taste of high-masonic honors Friday noon, August 27th, when members of Elf Khurafah temple, nobles of the Shrine of Bay City, will stop off just long enough to stage a street parade.

The special train will arrive at 11:30 o'clock sharp Friday noon and promptly the members will stage a spectacular street parade. They will be accompanied by their own band of 50 pieces and Chanters and patrol. Those who have ever seen the plumed knights in action will surely want to be on hand at this time to see them again. Those who have not seen them will be sorry if they miss this opportunity. Come out and enjoy a fine spectacle. It costs nothing and is offered by the members of Elf Khurafah temple as a courtesy to the people of Grayling. This organization has been on a pilgrimage to Cheboygan where they assisted in initiating a large class in the order and are stopping off at Grayling on their way to Cheboygan. Making friendly calls on the people of the order. Grayling like the other cities is fortunate in having this courtesy extended to them.

Everyone come out Friday at 11:30 a. m. on Main street. And bring the whole family and your neighbors. You will enjoy this affair.

SEELEY WAKELEY PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

The fine resort property of Seeley Wakeley has been sold to Dr. W. W. Wakeley, who is taking immediate possession. This consists of about four acres of land and the home, together with a number of outbuildings, which are located about twelve miles from the AuSable on one of the finest parts of this famous stream.

This has been the home of the Wakeleys since about the year 1878. It has been a favorite place for fishing and hunting for half a century, and now it is understood, is planned to be made into a club, where there being others interested in the project with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley have purchased the late George Smith home in a Maple street, and will move into it soon.

The Story Of Deward

(An interesting article taken from the files of the Avalanche, dated August 29, 1901, telling about the once thriving lumber town of Deward in the western part of Frederic township. Deward today is an almost deserted community. The article reads as follows:—)

Deward, Crawford County. Having been unable to visit the site of the new mill being built by the estate of David Ward, we are able to give the following from the Detroit Journal:

A project inaugurated by the David Ward estate recalls old times in lower Michigan—times supposed to have vanished forever—when lively lumber towns sprang up almost in a single night around the place selected as the site of their sawmills, by the lumber operators. There are a few of the older residents of the site who will not grow reminiscent of former scenes and half forgotten faces as they read the details of the project.

The anachronism of establishing a new Michigan lumber town in the twentieth century is what the Ward estate with undertakes. The new town will be located in Crawford county, will be the same time the estate is preparing to add to Michigan's railway system a short but important and convenient link.

The new town is springing up from the earth almost with a sawmill as its center, a cluster of houses for its employees and a store or two. It will not, however, be the wild and wide open town of the days of great lumber operations a generation ago. The Ward estate owns all the town and all the standing timber which will feed the mill, and in these quiet days the morale of the place can be better controlled. The new town and postoffice is named after the late David Ward. Orthographically it will appear to the eye as Deward. Deward is about eight miles northwest of Frederic, a Michigan Central railroad station, eight miles almost due north from Grayling.

The town is established primarily for the handling of an immense area of timber, 70,000 acres of it in Crawford, Ogemaw and Kalamazoo counties, an area equal to three townships. The tract contains a variety of pine, spruce, fir, hemlock, and it is on the land with hardwood that the lumber mill will follow the free chopper. The mill is the finest in Crawford county and is nearly completed at a cost of nearly $100,000. It will be started in a month and there is from 25 to 30 years of work before it, in which to grow and change from a lumber headquarters to an agricultural center. George K. Root, a son of the late Charles Root of Detroit, is one of the executors of the Ward estate, and he is in active charge of affairs in Deward. Deward is to be the headquarters of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad.

The importance of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad as a regular line between the Michigan Central and the G. R. & I., and the eastern and western sides of the state, from Bay City to Mackinaw on the east side, and from Reed City to Mackinaw on the west side.

The Detroit & Mackinaw railroad runs from Frederic, Crawford county, where a junction is formed with the Michigan Central, northwesterly to South Arm, Charlevoix county, on the south arm of Pine lake. The south arm of the lake has a channel of 16 to 17 feet and a vessel which can enter Charlevoix harbor can pass on to the terminal dock of the railroad. The Michigan Central and the Detroit & Charlevoix combined will make an almost straight line from Detroit to South Arm, through Saginaw, Bay City and Grayling. The Detroit & Charlevoix effects a junction with the G. R. & I. at Albion, Antrim county.

To develop the new railway line, Clark Haire, for 26 years with the

FORESTRY DEPT. ON INSPECTION TRIP

Something new to do and see, and to help with.

A two-day trip through the wild land districts in company with Col. Greeley, Chief Forester, U. S. Service, and other national and state officials responsible for the conduct of our forest affairs.

The problem of our idle lands is great and growing greater and more urgent.

This trip has been arranged to permit a direct inspection of the forestry work now going on in the state and so as to contrast the present scope of this work with what yet remains to be accomplished.

4:00 P. M.—Arrive Alpena. Approximately 114 miles. Supper and evening meeting, concluding trip on Saturday. This permits Sunday to be spent at various nearby resorts.

A more complete and detailed log of the trip is being completed and will be available and used by those making the trip.

This detailed log will be unique in that it will list not only the mileage, turns, etc., but also descriptive material of a semi-technical character so that the tripper may see and understand the essential facts affecting the several land types passed en route.

Michigan Central has been engaged as general superintendent. Mr. Haire started in with the Michigan Central as a messenger boy in Jackson, and was advanced through the positions of telegraph operator, train dispatcher and train master until he became assistant division superintendent of the Bay City and Mackinaw division with headquarters at Bay City.

The time table will be so arranged that passengers leaving Detroit at 6:30 in the morning will reach South Arm at 6:30 the same day.

It is a country of blueberries, wild blackberries and wintergreen, and has every feature which appeals to the sportsman and tourist while it is passing—such as a wind state to the settled agricultural condition.

SOME of the young girls of Grayling have been exceedingly fortunate this summer in having supervised recreation. Miss Ruth Cavanaugh, who during the past year was supervisor of physical education for girls in the Grayling schools, was engaged for the summer for that purpose and has given the young girls a wonderful time. There have been several outings and a Gypsy rover trip and other group features, and besides, almost daily, Miss Cavanaugh has had classes of both girls and boys in swimming at Lake Margrethe, and classes in tennis and other games. The young misses have been so busy that many of them feel that their vacation has gone by almost too quickly. For this splendid work the parents have Mrs. Bauman to thank, although she would much rather that the public did not know about it. All expenses are paid by that lady and is one of the finest things that has been done for Grayling young people. We hope some day that some real boy-loving scout leader will take hold of our young men and give them such a privilege as has been afforded the girls this year. We are sure that would lighten the duties of the probate court.

THE HOME PAPER

Men everywhere are coming more to understand and appreciate the influence of the rural press in the affairs of this country. Only a few years ago we were told that the local newspaper was passing—that it would not compete with the dailies and weeklies of the big cities—and that it must yield to the inevitable. But the prophets were wrong. It is true the local daily or weekly can not supply in detail all of the news material of the world. It cannot compete with its city contemporary in illustrations and features. And yet the local paper is still with us, and it is growing in strength and usefulness as the years go by. Some of the reasons for its existence are summed up in this paragraph from an exchange: "The local paper should be found in every home. No children should grow up ignorant who can be taught to appreciate the home paper. It is said to be the stepping stone of intelligence in all those matters not to be found in books. Give your children a foreign paper which contains not a word about any person, place or thing, which they saw or perhaps ever heard of, and how could you expect them to be interested. But let them have the home paper and read of people whom they meet and of places of which they are familiar and soon an interest is awakened which increases with every arrival of the local paper. Thus a habit of reading is formed and those children will read the papers all their lives and become intelligent men and women, a credit to their ancestors, strong in the knowledge of the world as it is today."

WHEN TIMBER BURNS

One has only to gaze upon the wide stretches of territory laid waste by forest fires in the upper counties of the state to realize the significance of the oft repeated slogan, "Every body loses when timber burns." Others are up in the north country where for miles along the highway the traveler sees the whitened sepulcher of all that remains of once promising forest growth. Like sentinels of death they stand along the bleak trail a warning to the careless person who is liable to leave desolation in his path.

Only the other day a Detroit man spending Sunday on a stream in Cheboygan county lit a cigarette and carelessly flicked a burning match into the grass where he was resting for a few minutes, leaving the scene shortly after to resume his sport. The burning match so carelessly thrown down started a fire that for a while threatened to assume disastrous proportions and had it not been discovered in time by others in the woods, there might have been a timber loss running into thousands of dollars. Plenty of rain over the state in the last few weeks has kept the forest fire loss down to a minimum, but with the coming of the dry autumn days there is a necessity of increased vigilance to prevent these ravages by the forest fires. The Michigan Press Association stands pledged to carry on a campaign of education against the criminal carelessness of starting forest fires, a campaign that it is hoped some day will result in saving to future generations the heritage that is so rightfully theirs.

FOREST'S VALUE IS SET FORTH

Forests enter into every business and social activity. They are essential to civilization. They are in demand more each year for recreation and the restoration of health. Woods, fresh air and exercise in the open bind up the rugged sleeve of Nature's better-than-medicine. It is Nature's prescription says the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University. The forests furnish employment for one million three hundred and fifty thousand persons. They supply wages annually amounting to approximately one billion, four hundred million dollars. These industries represent an investment of twelve billion dollars. The forest ranks third in the United States. But the forests stand second to none as an essential resource of prosperity and civilization.

Each Faces a Duty

The universal importance of the forest imposes upon each person the duty to conserve and protect the forests. The chief factor in forest conservation is fire prevention. Fire is the great destroyer. Forest fires are due almost entirely to human carelessness and therefore may be almost entirely prevented by the exercise of due care which means the observance of good forest manners. When we are in the forests we should not try to prove that intelligence and decent citizenship is a cloak that can be thrown off.

We do not burn our homes, our offices, our personal property. We go to the assistance of him whose home is burning. We do all we can to prevent such fires. This is because we appreciate the necessity for co-operation, assistance and protection, in preserving the home and office. There is, so far as fire is concerned, no difference between saving the home and office in finished lumber and the same lumber before it is finished. It burns it is your loss because the next time you pay for a home or office or pay rent the costs are going to be just that much higher because of the reduced supply of construction material. Your home and office are insured—they can be rebuilt. How much worse is it to burn the forest that is not insured and which can not be rebuilt in your time?

Destroy the Soil

Forest fires often destroy the forest soil so trees can not be grown on burned-over areas for hundreds of years. Forest fires exterminate wild life including the birds. Birds are of vital importance to successful agriculture. Forest fires cause rivers, springs and brooks to dry up, thus killing all fish and game. The forest is the chief source of pure drinking water and water for the dairy and agricultural land. The forest is part of the National defense. For all these reasons the forest should receive even better protection than the structures erected by the hand of man. It is important to each person that this national resource be relieved from the terrible annual devastation caused by human carelessness. It would cost 300 million dollars and require 300 years at our present rate of planting to reforest the area burned over in 1924.

Golf may be a pastime for the aged, but it certainly does wonders for the vocabulary.

Philosophy, with a woman, takes the form of a conviction that her freakies are attractive.

Otto Kahn, the banker, in an address says that the American women are not frivolous when there is serious work to be done. We'll say not, especially when it's such serious work as lecturing the old man for staying out too late on Saturday night.

An Ideal Vacation Land

Michigan is a playground for millions. Its wooded wilderness, rich in wild life and natural beauties, brings those who once enjoy it, back,—and back again.

Heavy inroads are being made into this treasure land, by the DEMON FIRE.

Fire Can Destroy it!

Printed below are five important FIRE PREVENTION RULES, constantly practiced by all trained woodsmen. Study and apply these and pass them on to others. Education in the use of these methods will quickly overcome the carelessness which now causes so much loss.

How to Prevent Fires

1. Matches—Do not use matches in a room where there is a fire. If you must use them, use them in a safe place.
2. Tobacco—Do not smoke in a room where there is a fire. If you must smoke, use a cigarette holder.
3. Campfires—Do not make campfires in a room where there is a fire. If you must make a campfire, use a fireproof container.
4. Stoves—Do not use stoves in a room where there is a fire. If you must use a stove, use a fireproof container.
5. Brush—Do not burn brush in a room where there is a fire. If you must burn brush, use a fireproof container.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

"Not Failure, but Low Aim, is Crime"

Observations on the Summer's Travel. Your county agent has been steadily going from farm to farm all summer, using for that purpose, all the time that could be spared from office work.

He is testing the soil on each farm for lime requirements, having in view the correction of soil conditions with agricultural lime, that farmers may grow a larger acreage of the legumes (red clover, sweet clover, alfalfa); that these may be established ed where now they fail, that they may grow a heavy tonnage where now they grow sparsely, all to the end that soil may be kept fertile and made more fertile, and that the farmer may have home-grown feed for more poultry and cattle.

While it will take until late fall to complete this work on the thorough basis on which we are attempting it, we will have many valuable observations as we passed from farm to farm.

Take 'Em For What They are Worth

(1) Here is a farm, run for over forty years—clean, no weeds, little or no quack grass, no dock, no mulch, no mowed, no thistles on roadside or in fields. Good sized farm, too. No old, broken fence posts littering the roadside. Not an armful of broken-down tools or other rubbish on the place. Justifiable pride in looks of farm and home.

Owner has found that neatness, untidiness, disorder, carelessness, do not necessarily go with farming.

(2) Some other farms—mud, cow manure, little less than a car load of manure, lying around things dropped where used.

(3) Out smut on lots of farms. Could have been prevented in an hour's time by treating seed at cost of one cent a bushel.

(4) Too many farms not getting their share of the income that they might have had from sale of cottage cheese.

(5) Not enough new fruit trees planted this spring.

(6) Practically every farmer herd-

(20) Mr. Fink (farmer name) soon to be announced has some Red Rock wheat and Rosen rye, both from certified seed, that are so plump and vigorous and grown on ground so clean that they should be in great demand as seed.

(21) Rosen rye outyields common rye two to one.

(22) Most of us sow fall rye too late. If we fitted the ground as carefully, used Rosen rye, and sowed early, we would have choice rye and far larger yields.

(23) On the C. C. Fink farm, a manure pump was used to pump manure into the stock tank. When not needed there, a shut-off turns it into a cement 60-barrel cistern under a neat little shop, where it can be lifted easily by a pitcher pump in case of calm or break down. A way ahead of the old way of carrying manure in a wheelbarrow.

Can't this outfit be copied on a lot of our farms? It is practically duplicated on the George Annis farm (Maple Grove Farm).

(24) Not enough acreage of root crops (carrots, mangel, rutabagas) raised for winter feed on Crawford county farms.

(25) Whose farm do you suppose is to be known by the pretty name "Level Acres" hereafter? Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Scott's in South Branch township.

(26) Lime tells. On the C. C. Fink farm you can see to an inch in the new seeding of clover, that where lime was used and where not.

(27) Not enough bees kept in the county—practically none. A good chance for persons with small capital, in three parts of the county.

(28) Going to sow some fall wheat to help out in your poultry business next year? Should be sowed before September 15. Red Rock wheat is good.

(29) Most of the swine of the county are kept in barren lots, the owner feeding skim milk and some weeds occasionally. Poor way to grow pork. Once try an acre block of alfalfa with skim milk and you will never go back to the old way.

(30) Let the time agent. Running after manure has been spent in saving manure and raising feed, some farms would be in better condition.

(31) We have a splendid, registered, four year old Holstein bull to loan at once to some Crawford county farmer.

This bull belongs to the New York Central lines, and was loaned to us through the courtesy of that railroad and its agricultural agent, Mr. E. J. Leenhouts.

Whoever gets this magnificent animal gets him free and keeps the service fees.

Where is the lucky farmer and the lucky neighborhood to improve their stock with this bull?

We will need to act quickly to prevent the animal being sent to some other county.

(32) Farmers, road commissioners or others can get the explosive of county agent, A. C. Lytle, at Grayling, at 10 cents a pound, if they hurry. Two weeks ago there were only 3500 pounds left out of the whole new car.

Time on Shipboard

The striking of bells on board ship is a custom of considerable antiquity. Originally the time was kept by the hour and the bells were rung at each hour. The glass was turned and the bells were rung along the line, and after striking ran along the line trying out. "One hour passed in two turns and more will pass if God will!"

Name to Zulu Tribe

The name "Zulu," which means "sky," was, not further back than a hundred years, confined to a small and insignificant tribe, occupying that part of the White Umfolozi valley which falls between the Mlabatana mountains on the north and that of Mafikeng on the south, according to the venture Magazine. Zulu, son of a certain Malandela, flourished in Zululand probably during the sixteenth century. This age is said to have quarreled with his elder brother Qwabe, who took exception to the former being presented by his mother with a certain white ox, with the result that Zulu left with his followers to occupy the White Umfolozi valley, while Qwabe went to live nearer the coast on the south side of the Umfolozi river and in what is known as Esowas district.

Lesson to Humanity

Found in Bee Hives

It is more than sweets and fruits and many a lovely dower that would fall us, lacking bees. We would have a few books. In fact, more books have been written about bees than about any other domestic animal. We should also lack something of sympathy and history. Beeskeeping is the oldest craft in the world. A beekeeper is a continuing an ancient line; joining the oldest of human guides, speaking a language known of all lands, supporting and practicing an art beloved of all people; subscribing to a simple faith, wider than any creed or color or the folds of any flag. The bees are a good first step in an all-world brotherhood, and could well be included in any world-peace plan. The symbol of that plan might be the hive for its universality, its unbroken continuity as a peaceful occupation, no less than for its social significance—its practice of sacrifice for the common good. Dallas Lore Sharp, in "The Spirit of the Hive."

Curse Trademark Fakers

In the latter part of October each year the English city of Sheffield celebrates its Cutlers' feast, a civic function that has been held annually since 1448, when the first of the city's master cutlers was elected. The banquet is attended by captains of industry from all over the empire, and by at least one minister of the crown. Two toasts that are always drunk with enthusiasm are: "Eternal destruction to all false marks on Sheffield goods" and "Success to the Hallamshire Whittells." This quaint wording is explained by the fact that the park of Yorkshire where Sheffield is situated was once known as Hallamshire, while "Whittell" is an old name for a knife. There is no public office more highly esteemed than this. As head of the ancient Cutlers' guild the mayor takes precedence next to the lord mayor of Sheffield.

Prodigious Memory

One of the sources of the late Rene Viviani's eloquence was his profound knowledge of French literature. He knew by heart thousands of verses and could recite entire acts of the classic tragedies without an error. He demonstrated this at the time of his baccalaureate, when he agreeably surprised the examiner by his accurate analysis of the Cid. "Can you recite a few verses of it?" the examiner asked. "Certainly," said Viviani, and had recited the whole of the first act before he was halted. On another occasion he recited the whole of Horatius and Phleire from beginning to end—Bulgaria, Sofia.

An Expert

"Julia, do you know what love is?" The young man put the question in an intense voice. "Yes," replied the girl, firmly. "But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love as undying as the sun, as all-pervading as the air, as wonderful as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?" In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.

Transmitting Light Rays

The bureau of standards says that the transmission factor of smooth, clear glass is about 92 per cent in perpendicularly incident light, the loss being that reflected at the two surfaces. The amount of light transmitted varies with the angle of incidence and the refractive index of the glass. The reflector will absorb from 10 to 40 per cent of the light incident upon it, depending upon its surface.

Victor in Life's Race

Life is a test of fitness. In running his race a man should be able to pass the winning post with head up, heart light, eye clear, and conscience at peace. If he can do so he is not "one who also ran," but the captain of his own destiny. —Orin.

THE NATURAL FEELING

The man in the automobile may be opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment, but he will instantly discharge a drinking chauffeur. The train may be crowded with delegates to the anti-prohibition convention, but they would mob the engineer who would take a drink while drawing precious freight. The industrial magnate may talk critically of sumptuary laws, but he will apply them like a despot to the man who watches over the driving power of his vast establishment. When safety is involved, we are all dry. —Senator William E. Borah.

HOME, DAD AND THE BOY

By FRANK H. CHELEY.

The Trained Dad

HE IS the man who has made it his business to study the Dad-business. His slogan is: "It pays to know." He is a student of his problem. He recognizes that the more one knows about boy-nature, the less physical punishment one needs to use. He realizes that parenthood is a profession, perhaps the noblest profession, in fact a life-calling, a fine art based upon genuine science, and seeks constantly to be increasingly skillful. He knows that each boy is just a collection of twenty thousand wiggles, each wiggle with a meaning, and trains himself to understand the language. He believes the boy without a "playground" will become the man without a job, and that to do too much for a boy guarantees that he will do nothing for himself. He is determined to master the job of being a Dad and uses every legitimate means.

Brother Williams

The reason Solomon was so much married was that he could take "em an' leave 'em des ez he liked; an' no body could put him in jail fer all his wives. But watch out how you tries ter feller dat schedule — Atlanta Constitution.

Families Supplied

Ad in Minneapolis paper. Delayed but more Now. You benefit. 250 New-Linen-Babies. Same Size as Others at $7.05. Special $2.40. — Boston Post-Script.

Soul's Hard Road

There is no short cut, no patent runway to wisdom. After all the centuries of invention, the soul's path lies through the thorny wilderness which must still be trodden in solitude, with bleeding feet and sobbing for help, as it was trodden by them of old time. —George Eliot.

Leads in River Tonnage

The tonnage passing through the Detroit river, which is Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair, exceeds in volume that passing through any other river in the world.

Three of the boys were charged with having entered the store of Olaf Sorenson & Sons, and having stolen a quantity of pop. Prosecutors Attorney Merle F. Neill talked to the boys and gave them some sensible advice and cautioned them as to the outcome of their lives if they are to continue such practices. Continued disrespect for the property and rights of others leads to criminal instincts and ultimately to prison. Some of the boys took the matter with considerable seriousness, while others seemed to give little heed to the things told them by Mr. Neill and by Judge Sorenson. Each was made to pay $1.55 with which to repay for the goods that were stolen. Three of the boys were already under probation and it looks though they would be due for serious punishment, should they become involved again in any such manner.

Among the heavy buyers of berries in this city is Chris King. He says that he has had a good huckleberry business, but not as great as in some former years. He shipped out 1,800 cases. The early prospects for a big crop was crippled by frosts early in July and also by the hot, dry spell that followed. However, there are still many berries in the wilds and they are coming in from the pickers in pretty fair quantities. The blackberry crop is now nicely started and Mr. King has already shipped a number of cases. His market is largely in Detroit, Toledo and Chicago. Besides berries Mr. King is actively engaged in the gathering and shipping of ferns and cedar boughs, a market for which he has already well built up. This work also has just begun and will continue until the snow is too deep for harvesting the ferns. In this latter operation he is associated with a Mr. McClain, business being done under the name of King and McClain.

No meals will be served there for the present, but special attention will be given to the needs and comforts of lodgers. The lower rooms are fast being cleaned and re-decorated. Mr. Scott says that he has not yet determined just what use he will make of them, and may possibly offer them for rent.

ELECTION NOTICES MUST BE PUBLISHED IN PAPER

The last legislature passed a law that registration and election notices must be published three times in a newspaper. This applies to townships, cities, and villages. Heretofore posted notices have been all that were necessary, but now the notices must be published in a newspaper to make the election legal.

Officials in townships in which there is no newspaper printed will do well to bear this new provision of the statutes in mind.
